Legislative Update

Senator Joey Hensley, MD
2024 Session of the 113th General Assembly

The measure updates Tennessee's law to include cyberattacks in critical infrastructure vandalism crimes, making it a Class C felony.

The 113th General Assembly has adjourned for 2024, and it was a very successful year. We have taken measures for Tennessee to be a better place to live, work and to raise a family. This is some of the legislation that was passed during this session.

Prohibiting taxpayer-funded ransomware payments / SB 1825
Cybercriminals have increasingly targeted federal and state government agencies, disrupting critical systems and compromising citizens' private data.

Felony offense for repeat misdemeanors / SB 2155
We passed legislation this year that creates a Class E felony offense for certain repeat misdemeanor offenses.
There are 37 qualifying misdemeanor offenses.
After 5 or more convictions of qualifying misdemeanors in the past ten years, the criminal would be subject to a class E felony charge at the discretion of a judge.
A Class E felony is punishable by up to six years in prison and a fine of up to $3,000.

This year, we passed a bill that prevents taxpayer funds from being used for ransom payments to cybercriminals to discourage cybercriminals from targeting Tennessee.
This legislation forbids state entities from engaging in contracts, negotiations, or payments with known system hackers.
It also mandates state entities to notify the Tennessee Bureau of Investigation in the event of a cyber-attack.

After 3 or more convictions of certain repeat violent offenses (domestic assault and child neglect), the third or subsequent conviction could be raised from a class D misdemeanor to a class E felony.
This law addresses the issue of persistent crime and highlights our desire to tackle criminals avoiding significant consequences for repeat misdemeanors.

Transparency in Sentencing for Victims Act
This law requires all Tennessee courts to place on the record the estimated number of years and months to be served before a criminal is eligible for parole, as well as the reason for the sentence and enhancements. (Public Chapter 952, 2022)
This helps victims and their families be better informed about how much time an offender will serve.

Misdemeanor Sentencing / SB 1859
As part of a large effort to crack down on crime this session and discourage repeat misdemeanor offenses, we passed legislation that extends the percentage of a misdemeanor sentence that a court may require a defendant to serve from 70% to 100%.
This law allows judges to make the best decision for the defendant and their communities.

Increasing accountability for setting bond amounts
This law increases judicial accountability and transparency when setting bond amounts for the most serious criminal cases. (Public Chapter 362, 2023)
Only elected judges - criminal, circuit court or general sessions judges - are allowed to set bond in the following

Under previous law, the maximum percentage of a misdemeanor sentence a defendant could serve was 75 percent.
This has caused issues as these criminals often become repeat offenders due to a lack of full sentencing being served.

Cases involving Class A or Class B felonies
Aggravated assault
Aggravated assault against a first responder
Felony domestic assault
It also requires anyone out on bail and arrested for another crime to have their new bond set in an amount twice the customary amount.

Holding parents accountable for child's delinquent actions / SB 2571
We passed the Parent Accountability Act this year to give judges the discretion to fine parents or guardians instead of the child for their delinquent actions after their first offense.
If the parent is unable to pay the fine, community service is an alternative option.
This bill is designed to incentivize parents to pay closer attention to their children.

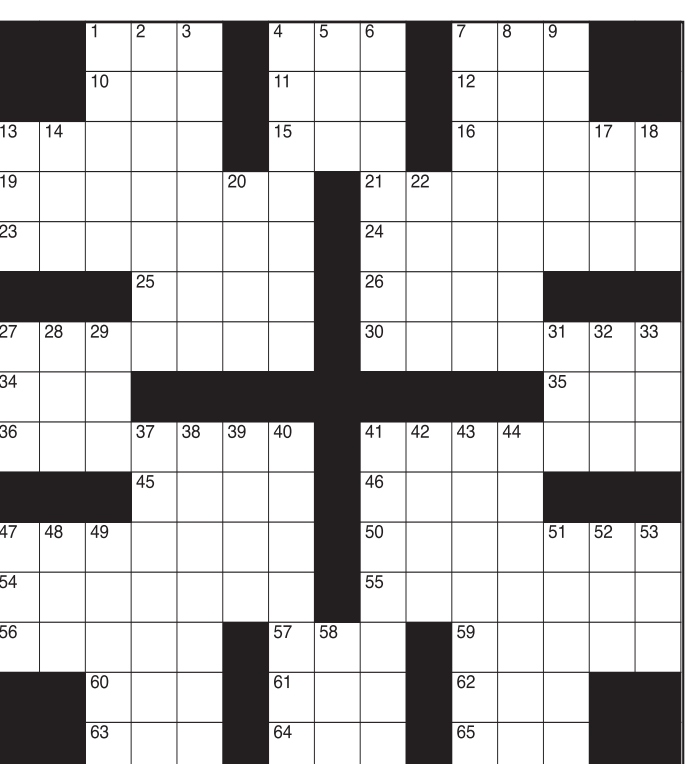

Protecting property owners from squatters / SB 795
Legislation passed to protect Tennessee homeowners from squatters through an established and expedited removal process.
Squatting is the illegal practice of occupying a property without the owner's lawful permission.
Although squatters have no rights in Tennessee, under previous law a property owner had to initiate a judicial eviction of the squatters.
This legislation removes much of the burden from legitimate property owners by establishing a clear process for law enforcement to restore possession, which can expedite the removal of illegal occupants in as little as 72 hours.

Communication between juvenile courts and DCS / SB 447
We passed legislation to improve communication and coordination between the Department of Children's Services (DCS) and the juvenile justice system by requiring DCS to notify the juvenile judge when a child in DCS custody is scheduled to be discharged.
This law also sets a procedure for the judge to object to the child being discharged from DCS custody.

The legislation also clarifies that the sheriff may arrest the trespassers.
It currently can take up to two years to remove an illegal squatter and can cost a property owner thousands of dollars in legal fees, lost revenue, and property repairs.
